

Writing NSW Micropoetry Competition Winner

A wail echoes from the fallen maples as they smother the earthen grave of my sister, bleeding a tune in the oaks' crimson red to scar a valley through crevices of mud where her bones still fight with each other.

By Fizza Abbas